To
JUDGE HOWELL COBB,
Scholar and Jurist,
and
Gentleman of the Old South, this volume of
The Pandora is respectfully dedicated.
RARELY indeed do we find all the qualities that go to make up Christian manhood more happily blended than in the case of Judge Howell Cobb, to whom this book is dedicated. Georgia cannot boast of a more thorough Christian gentleman, a more profound jurist, and a more zealous supporter of the cause of higher education than Judge Cobb.

Judge Cobb was born in Athens, Georgia, July 7, 1842. His early training and his collegiate education were received here. He was a student at the University in the class of 1862, but left school in April, 1861, to answer the call of his country to the front. He was afterwards given his diploma by special act of the Board of Trustees. He enlisted as a private in "Troup Artillery," "Cobb's Legion." He was soon made corporal. He served under Lee in West Virginia and then under Magruder in the Peninsula of Virginia. After twelve months he was transferred to the 16th Georgia regiment, of which his father was then Colonel. On the promotion of his father to Brigadier-General, he was commissioned 1st Lieutenant of Cavalry, C. S. A., with brevet rank of Captain, and assigned as aide-de-camp on his father's staff. He held the same position when his father became Major-General, and until the close of the war.

In 1865, he married Miss Mary McKinley, of Milledgeville, Georgia, daughter of Colonel William McKinley. He practiced law one year in Milledgeville with his father-in-law, under the firm name of McKinley and Cobb, having been admitted to the bar in Macon, Georgia, in February, 1866.

With the exception of the one year in Milledgeville, Judge Cobb's home has always been in Athens. He was the first and has been the only judge of the city court of Athens. He was appointed in 1879, and has been re-appointed six times. He has for a number of years been Professor of Law in the University of Georgia Law School. He is also a member of the Board of Trustees.

Judge Cobb has the love of every member of the University Law School as well as the respect and esteem of all the student body and every one who knows him.

TOOMBS' OAK

Now is the hour of thy last agony!
The sombre shades of death draw on apace
To fold thee in its darkness, and ruthless
Ruin strikes thee with the shaft of dread decay.

The Midas-touch of Autumn, the last time,
Doth glorify thy branches with its gold,
Ere the death-rattle of December winds
Is heard to shake thy fruit and foliage
Down to the earth, to sleep in death with thee.

Full five decades have swept, with kingly tread,
Through the procession of the centuries,
Since Robert Toombs, fair Georgia's lordly son,
Strong as the fibre of thy sturdy heart,
And full of fire as thy green bark of sap
Stood at thy feet to blend his fame with thine.

Today ye both rest in the vale of death:
Caught in the meshes of one common foe,
And laid away in the dim silences,
And gloom and darkness of eternal years.
But as the ivy, green and vigorous,
Doth wreathe thy trunk with its supernal growth,
And hide thy scars, and clothe thee yet more fair—
The mother heart of nature being kind,
That she doth deck thee 'till thou dost appear
In death more fair than thou hast been in life—
So will thy brother in majestic strength,
In rugged grandeur—the immortal Toombs—
Stand 'midst the tempests and the wrecks of time,
Growing in beauty through perspective years.
A people's love shall twine his name about,
And glorify his princely attributes,
'Till he shall loom, like a white shaft of light—
Its base the earth—its summit in the stars!

ARTHUR L. HARDY.
In writing the history of a graduating class, many interesting facts must be omitted, and those chosen are so isolated that one must despair of writing—in the space assigned—at sufficient length to give the outsider a true appreciation of our class individually and collectively.

Before going into the history proper, it might be well to examine into the characteristics of our class and discover from study of them why it has made so enviable a record. We have taken the motto of the State of Georgia,—“Wisdom, Justice, Moderation,”—as the rule of action in all things. Indeed some are extremists on the subject of moderation, but the number is not large.

Our distinguishing characteristic, however, is an indomitable class spirit and loyalty. The class has acted almost as one man for the up-building of the University since we first assembled in the fall of 1900.

As Freshmen we held our own remarkably well, giving the Sophomores “tit for tat” on every attempt to subjugate us. The goats were properly decorated and the water-tower was painted appropriately soon after our arrival. At the top of the tower may still be seen a large “‘04,” symbolic of our past victories and an index to the future career of “naughty-four.” May it be as truly prophetic of the future success of the class as it has been in the past.

Nothing daring that former generations of Freshmen attempted was left untried by us. In the class room we likewise distinguished ourselves, and it was our special delight to botanize; even yet, most of us know what a pedicile is.

Our Sophomore year, for months anticipated with dread, was a disappointment, for we found far less trouble in mastering the difficulties of Messrs. Horace, Wells, Gardner and Company than we had been led to expect by the classes above us. Whether this was due to our superior mental endowments is not for me to say.

As Juniors we devoted much of our time to study outside the prescribed text books, and original researches were made, many theses written and countless experiments performed. At the close of the year the faculty praised the faithful work and exemplary conduct of the class.

At last the Freshman has ripened into the Senior. What a change! Now he is received on almost equal terms by the professors and the girls—well, they just worship Seniors.

The same characteristics that brought success to the class in our earlier days still influence our work, and in our studies a high standard is maintained, our members excel in all branches of college activity,—athletics, journalists, scholars and orators are found in our ranks. In such a remarkable class as ours it would indeed be a hard task to single out those deserving of special mention, for a complete list of those who have distinguished themselves would embrace the entire class. To the Faculty we owe much, for they have been largely instrumental in fashioning our characters, and to their rich and wholesome instruction much is due.

Soon “‘04” will go out into the world to face the vicissitudes of life; may the success which crowned our efforts as students be multiplied into each and every member of our notable class.

History of the Junior Class

DEEPLY do I feel my inability, and the inability of any other writer, to set forth in words, thoughts that justly tell of the progress and achievements of the Class of '05. But, realizing that a history written in words is scarcely necessary, since it is also set forth in undying deeds, I write this only as a slight reminder to posterity, of the deeds and successes of the Class of '05.

When, in '01, we came as Freshmen to these moulding walls and historic grounds, we were one of the largest classes ever entering the University, and after having traveled over the rough and thorny way from Freshman to Junior, we still maintain that distinction. Although on our upward march, some have fallen by the wayside, their places have been taken by bright new men who have performed well their duties to the class.

In the past when we were typical Freshmen, we performed well the hereditary duties and obligations devolving upon us. When we were Sophomores we initiated the Class of '06 into the secrets of College life, with such befitting exercises that impressions were made that will never grow dim or fade from their memory. As Juniors, we have put away childish things and have acted in a way altogether worthy of the title "upper classmen."

Our class is proud of its fully developed men; men in both body and mind, men with muscles of steel coupled with strength of will and originality of thought, and men with beautiful well-rounded characters. From such men as these we would expect the Junior class to contribute her share of men in all lines of College endeavor. Such is the case, we furnish men worthy to represent the University of Georgia and the Class of '05. We furnished five men on the foot-ball squad, and our full quota on both base-ball and track, all of whom have nobly upheld the honor of the class. Such is our record in athletics.

Wonderful as has been the achievements of the Juniors on the gridiron and track, even more wonderful is our achievements in the Literary field. In the Society halls, echo the voices of Juniors in the heat of debate, each upholding the side that he considers right, with both logical and eloquent speech. Juniors are to be found as Anniversarians, North Carolina and Impromptu debaters, and, in truth, wherever sound argument and good voices are needed, there Juniors are to be found.

The Literary activity of the class also shows itself in the college publications, their productions passing the severest criticism unscathed. On the board of editors of the "Red and Black" and "Engineering Annual" Juniors hold important positions.

I might continue to enumerate the successes of the Juniors indefinitely, but it is unnecessary, since the world will hear of their deeds and be glad to do them honor.

HISTORY is primarily a narration of facts, and facts are truths. Hence it is essential for anyone, who writes of actual happenings, to keep the above statement in mind, so that the reader may receive nothing but right impressions. Now, since I have been selected as the Historian for the Class of '06, I shall only relate those events that (you may rest assured) are as sound as though they had come from Macaulay himself.

And is it not a pleasant task? How gladly do our beloved Confederate survivors seize the opportunity to tell of the glorious accomplishments of Southern Arms! How enthused becomes the "Old Tar," who, with a radiant face, repeats his narration of the great victory in Manila Bay! How happy is the college student, when he can announce to his friends the victories of the debating teams or of the foot-ball and base-ball teams! So, how happy am I, that I can write of the accomplishments and victories of the class, which I regard as the best in our University—the Class of 1906!

At the opening of the first day, the Sophomore Class began with one of the largest enrollments in the history of the University. According to custom they immediately organized and elected officers. This being done everything was ready for the opening.

How did this opening begin? Ask the Freshmen. If you are unable to ascertain from this source, seek the scrap books or relics of the Sophomore and you will find bunched together, a pair of scissors, some hair clippers and balls composed of miscellaneous colors of hair. This beautiful hair once adorned the craniums of '07; but '06 had its harvest day and behold the crop! Yes, the initiation season was most successful. Every day and night the roar of "Rix Rax" resounded throughout Athens, and not a Freshman was to be seen.

But soon a reaction took place. One balmy day the Class of '07 met to organize. This, as it were, was the declaration of war, and the two rival forces met. The conflict, which followed, was somewhat heated, but finally, everywhere our men were victorious and once more the shout of "Rix Rax" shook the ground. Thus it was whenever they met: '06 moved on with the victorious march of a Roman army.

After these playful and enjoyable occasions, college work began, and along with this the foot-ball season. I need not dwell long on these topics. I shall only state that, in the first place our class, as a whole, is composed of hard and conscientious workers. They seem to realize one of the primary teachings, if not the most important one, in college life; namely, if we learn how to work hard in college, the difficult path in after life will be easier to travel.

As in their mental work so in their physical work, have they accomplished much. The 'Varsity foot-ball line-up was composed mostly of '06 men, all of whom made brilliant records.

In base-ball they even eclipsed their foot-ball record. Let us consider our class base-ball team. Would not a thousand per cent. give any one an envious standing? And so it was. In the class games, the Sophomores won every one which they played. And what was the result? A large, beautiful pennant, on which is inscribed "The Class of 1906"—"Champions," floats proudly in the air.

And now, fellow classmates, having given a brief sketch of our history, allow me in closing to make this statement. We have had a successful session. Nothing has marred our record. We have climbed to a high pinnacle. What is the reason for this? I will tell you. We were organized into a compact body and worked together, hence success followed in our tracks. Now next year, let us all return to this, our University, and continue to stay united. In this way let us climb to higher ideals and thereby bring honor not only to ourselves and our people, but also to our well beloved institution.

History of the Freshman Class

LOOKING retrospectively and examining the doings of the '07 Class, the Historian meets with no difficulty in writing its history, except in deciding just what and how many of the valiant deeds and great accomplishments to record. For if he were to mention every fact deserving this distinction, the higher classmen would complain that he was greedy of space.

No sooner did the class set foot upon the campus than it began to show an extra amount of energy which was displayed in full many times during the year.

The first duties that devolved upon the class were to paint the town and the goats and to assist the Sophomores in the initiation performances. A casual glance at the town will convince the passerby that there is at least one Freshman who is not afraid to ascend to the topmost round of a ladder. It is useless to say anything about hair-cuts and gauntlets, for there is not a Freshman who will ever forget that awful time. But ask that man who was ashamed to go home Christmas because his hair was not long enough to comb, how he and the Freshman got along last fall.

On the athletic field the class has made a record of which it may well be proud, for it is one that has never been surpassed. The foot-ball team knew that a great deal of its success depended upon three Freshmen, one being noted for his swiftness, the other two for their ability to push. On the diamond the First Baseman attracts the attention and wins the admiration of everyone who sees him in that important position. And the success of Georgia in the second game against Tech. was largely due to the good work of a Freshman behind the bat. On the occasion of Field Day when Georgia and Tech. were contestants, the 100-yards, the 220-yards dashes, and the mile-run were all won by '07 boys.

As to literary achievements it is said that no class within the last decade has made so good a record. The majority of its members seem anxious to avail themselves of the opportunities afforded by the University. It was the first class to have a public debate. The participants shed honor on their societies and class in their well thought-out and well-delivered speeches. Prof. Smith said it was the best Freshman debate he had heard this year.

History of Senior Law Class

"Law is Queen of Gods and Men."—Plutarch.

WHEN we contemplate the pleasantness of the duty of chronicling the events pertaining to the law class of 1904, our sympathy goes out to an unfortunate brother historian who from lack of competent data is compelled to resort to irrelevant matter to fill up space.

Our duty is most pleasant because the pages of the present history are resplendent with honors and victories achieved, of which few preceding classes can boast. We propose to swerve from the proverbial dignity and modesty of a senior lawyer sufficiently long to relate briefly the actual history of the law class of 1904.

In September, 1902, sixteen legal(ites) (lights) with wondrous conceptions of presidential possibilities, sought to be initiated into the mysteries of law, and so allowed "Sylvy" to exchange his autograph for four "X’s" each. These future statesmen, striking an average age of twenty-one, hail from Georgia and her sister State Florida.

Seven of them are graduates of Georgia and one of them is "from Atlanta." (Atlanta alway finds herself represented in everything of widespread importance.)

One year, and the eventful career of the class of 1904 is well under way. They were potent factors in establishing the promising Georgia Law Debating Society, furnished the representative of the Law Department on University Day, and supplied the captaincy of 1903 and 1904 foot-ball teams.

Its second year begins with four of its members prima facie absent, but as many more through equity proceedings were admitted, swelling its ranks to the original "Sweet Sixteen." Few in number, but unquestionably the strongest class in the history of the Law Department, leaders not only in the Law Department, but in the Academic as well. They furnished the two editors-in-chief of the "Georgian;" business manager and assistant business manager; three out of four editors-in-chief of the "Red and Black. The two editors-in-chief of "Pandora;" five out of ten of associate editors on the Board; two out of three business managers on the "Pandora;" representation on 1904 base-ball team and the winners of the Georgia-Sewanee Debate. Under the efficient instruction of "Sylvy" and the rest, we have grown in the knowledge of the law, and propose to go forth conquering and to conquer.

We leave behind us no tangible remembrances that can only crumble and decay, but feeling as men we have done our duty and made ourselves felt in the University, we leave that, which eternity alone can quash—fluence.

In going forth to our respective locations to champion the cause of the most noble profession, we shall reflect with pleasure and pride upon our last college days and endeavor to maintain the high standard of honor and dignity that so fully permeates the atmosphere of the University of Georgia.

Hymn to the University of Georgia

(Sung for the first time on Commencement Sunday, June 14, 1908.)

Hail, University,
Our love we pledge to thee,
Our faith as well:
Long may thy worth be sung,
Thy banner high be flung:
This prayer on every tongue:
God shield thee well.

Wise University,
Standing for liberty,
Thou bidd'st us rise
Above the mean and low,
All prejudice forego
And error overthrow:
God keep thee wise.

Strong University,
Thou for a century
Hast fought the Wrong,
Aiding the Right to win,
Letting the Truth shine in,
Faithful through storm and din:
God keep thee strong.

Great University,
Long may'st thou virile be
To serve the State:
Great in thy usefulness,
God give thee all success,
May He protect and bless,
And keep thee great.
Junior Law Class.
If history is rightly called the crystallization of past politics, then the history of the Junior Law Class will never be written, for the facts upon which it must be founded are closely guarded secrets. If the plots and plans, the schemes and secret deals, to whose accomplishment we have given our best energies, could be unearthed, a strange and wondrous tale might be told, but this cannot be, for truly the ways of politicians are devious. Among them all the college politicians rank high in skill, and why are we lawyers if not to be the most skillful of the skilled in this art where cunning is of first importance!

So it is not for mortal historian, lawyer though he be, to follow the winding ways of politics and explore the secret springs of action to discover the material from which alone this history should rightly be woven. And besides, granting that our existence of a few short months entitles us to a past, can we claim that our politics has ever crystallized to anything beyond a mere mush?

The only time we have experienced anything like a solidifying process has been when, entrenched behind rows of battle-scarred desks, each of us was frozen by the fear that he might next be called upon to become a sacrifice for the good of his class, by raising himself above his barricade to receive an unerring and deadly fusillade of estates, torts, feuds, denizens, felonies, heirlooms, fealties, slanders and chattels. If the victim survived this legal grape-shot and canister and did not succumb to that awfully mysterious thing called a dangerous impersonal inanimate instrumentality, he underwent the final, crucial test by entering the labyrinthine mazes of hair-splitting distinction between tweedledum and tweedledee. If he was still—but all of us were mortal and are yet threading those illusive paths.

But if we are denied the privilege of a history because of our extreme youth and our reticence in disclosing our secrets, we may at least be allowed to record here, while they are fresh in our minds, some of the memories of what must always be to us the first of many years given to the pursuit of our life-work.

The ardor of our first acquaintance with the law was not in the least heightened by the forbidding aspect of the gloomy back room where we were lodged with the patriarchs of the ages, whose faces seemed always staring down upon us from their frames, admonishing us for our shortcomings and inciting us to more strenuous endeavor to attain a place with them on the walls of the back room of the library. But our surroundings were well in keeping with our work, for we were being initiated by Blackstone into the niceties of legal reasoning.

Our labors were not fruitless. We were well rewarded on the red-letter day of the year when we moved into the new and spacious quarters for which we had been waiting and watching so long. Here we have abundance of room for our expanding knowledge and we have used our opportunities so well that now, after nine months of ceaseless toil, we have won the right to be bailiffs and the privilege of carrying books for the busy lawyers and water to the sleepy juniors.

The Junior Law Class has been small this year. Its enrollment has hovered about thirteen, as if in doubt whether that mystic number were a sign of good or evil. But our small size has not prevented our keeping up the record of those who have gone before us, by sending lawyers to leading places on the athletic fields, the rostrums, and the editorial staffs.

— 133 —
Thou noble scion of a glorious past,
Type of a race evanishing from earth,
We come in humble song to pay our meed
Of praise and homage for thy native worth.

Like one who sighs above the silent corse
Of her he loved in youth, thou sittest now
Beside the open grave of the Old South,
And broodest on the glories gone for aye.

How fair the memories thou dost conjure up!
How bright the past thy genius doth resume!
How thou dost cause the youthful heart to yearn
For those brave days, when in heroic mould
Our Southern manhood was most nobly cast.

Today we heard thee speak. An echo seemed
To break upon us from the slumbering past.
Once more we heard the clarion voice of Lee,
The call of Davis, Jackson, Gordon, Hill.
We felt the pulsing of a mighty cause
Thrill through us, and we dared
To wish that we had lived with them.

Aye, to have lived, or to have died with them,
We count a most unequaled privilege!
We saw the serried hosts of Lee go down
Beyond the western mountains of defeat,
We saw the curtains fall on the last act
Of that dread tragedy, and Hope subdued
Folded her wings, crushed by the doom of Might.

Ah! 'tis a bitter thought that such as thou
Should know defeat; that contumelious Force
Should ever trample on the cause of Right,
And overwhelm in gloom and obloquy
The kingliest of the kingly brave, who Ever died for Truth, and lofty principle.

When thou shalt slumber with the patriot dead,
Who, in confederated glory fought
For home, for honor, and for native land,
Know thou we'll not forget thee. Memory
Will blossom fairer as the years roll on.
Thou, and thy comrades every one, shall wear
The deathless beauty of love's immortelles.
COMMENCEMENT
History of the University German Club

THE University of Georgia German Club was organized in the University to meet a long-felt want. The order of things under which the Commencement dances had been carried on in former years was thought by many to give rise to several evils. The dances were costing the students and others who attended them entirely too much. Trustees and Commencement visitors who desired to attend the dance were compelled to pay the same as the students. Opportunities for speculation on the dances, whether taken advantage of or not by the Hop Committees, were afforded.

The German Club has charge of all the Commencement dances except the Pan Hellenic Hop and the Cotillion Hop. The Club will give the dances at actual cost, thereby reducing the cost to each person who attends from twelve dollars to about five. No one will be allowed to attend the dances unless he is a member of the German Club or an invited guest. Members of the Board of Trustees and prominent Commencement visitors will be invited to attend the dances. No opportunity for speculation on the dances is offered.

The German Club, therefore, does away with the objectionable features that were prevalent under former systems, and also offers the Commencement dances at the lowest possible cost.

The German Club is regularly organized, having officers and various committees, and also a constitution and by-laws.

He is not most a hero who most dares
Before the glaring foot-lights of the world;
And he who climbs the sweep of marble stairs
Midst music's throb, and pennons fair unfurled,
And nodding plumes above his head o'er-curl'd—
Gains not the noblest summit of the earth.
But he who from high place is often hurled,
Yet struggling rises conscious of his worth,
And hides his soul's despair with a bold front of mirth,

Or he who far from any voice of fame,
Condemned by friends, and scoffed by gloating foes,
Clinging to the right, unfaltering at the blame
Of the self-righteous, dreads no threatened woes,
But does his duty bravely as he knows,
And dreams alone of recompense from heaven—
His is the name that with most beauty glows
In God's blest archives when on earth's last even
The Judgment of the Ages falls, and worlds o'er-thrown are riven!

OUR CHANCELLOR

I
In our Chancellor, in 1902,
Desire for fame athletic grew.

II
He rode his bike in 1903,
As warm a scorcher as e'er you'd see.

III
A bowler bold, in 1904
He bowled two hundred points, and more.

IV
A chauffeur grand in 1905,
You'll see him on the campus drive.

V
He'll grow his hair in 1906
And commence to practice kicks.

VI
He'll join the 'leven in 1907
And soon the Chancellor'll be safe in heaven.

The Forgotten Rose

I find a letter in my desk,
A pressed and scentless little rose,
As fragile as a spider’s web
The faded sheets, the faded sheets inclose.
Its faded leaves recall a past
Forgotten long, long ago.
Ah! in the clover meads of love
The rarest, sweetest plants will grow.

It is because my hands have touched
This faded, faded little flower
That I have turned a moment from
My more than, more than, dreary, dreary hour,

To sing of one who long ago
Died like the flowers, flowers fair.
Or like the sweetest perfumes die
Upon, upon the summer air.

I scarce can trace her faded lines,
And as I read them o’er and o’er,
The tide comes rippling to my feet
From Memory’s, Memory’s distant, distant shore,
But in a fairer, better land
Than this, to-day she knows
That I have blessed the hand that pressed
For me, for me, this little rose.

Ione

You're the daintiest little blossom that the summer ever missed,
You're the sweetest little flower that the sunshine ever kissed,
And your voice to me is music soft as bells that chime at eve
When the sun, of sleeping woodlands and uplifted hills, takes leave.

Fair as angel dreams in heaven, bright as stars that shine at night,
Pure as snows that rift their beauty into airy forms of white;
You're my own delighted goddess, you're my fairy full of glee,
You're my richest, rarest treasure—you are all the world to me.

THE night was dark. The air was chill. The west wind whistled o'er the hill. Behind a cloud, the pale moon sank. The woods were drear. The grass was dank.

My ghostly companions led me cautiously through the vines and densely tangled underbrush out into a little circular opening. Here in the center was a fire and upon the fire a caldron in which a heavy odored concoction was simmering. Grouped about were curiously hooded and gowned figures in various attitudes, all perfectly motionless. My companion conducted me within the circle of the fire light and then addressed me in low sepulchral tones:

"You have been summoned hither this night to witness the devotions of this order. We meet in this place once in nine months, to our Great Spirit that certain monstrous doings may cease in the University of Georgia, and that the doers thereof may be brought to the punishment they so richly deserve. Fail not to give your closest attention; and let your lips forever remain, upon this matter, as silent as the grave."

My griesly interlocutor then made a sign with his right hand and the company commenced to move about the caldron which was boiling more vigorously. As they moved about the caldron they chanted in low tones:

"Round and round the caldron go, In the poisoned entrails throw, Rodents that 'neath Candler Hall Dead, hath lain since early fall, Double, double, toil and trouble, Fire burn, and caldron bubble; Hair of Williams quickly take, In the caldron boil and bake, Eyes of Extrowich and Hogg Mixed with vinegar and grog, Wool of Fleishman, gall of Cox, Gamble's shoes and Turnbull's sox; Alder's fork and blind worm's sting, Jake Orr's legs and mouth of King, Nose of Weston, face of Park, Nerve of Sophomores on a lark, Add thereto enough hot air Got by twisting tongue of Blair, For a charm of powerful trouble Like a hell broth boil and bubble, Add thereto a tiger's chaudron For the contents of our caldron, Bubble, bubble, toil and trouble, Fire burn and caldron bubble, Cool it with a baboon's blood, Then the charm is firm and good."

Immediately upon the ending of this chant there arose from the caldron a spirit as dark as night and from the spirit came these words:
"What would you, or any of you, O! Sons of Retribution?"

"O, mighty Spirit," spoke one of the hooded figures, "there are amongst us certain evil men named Bower and Smith and Dobbs and Cook. The same do make the night hideous with their caterwauling, which they call serenading. I pray thee have this evil stopped in the University."

"O, mighty Spirit," spoke another, "there are certain loud talking animals of the long-eared variety in the University. There voices can be heard on every street corner and on all occasions. Nor do they ever consider the fact that people are apt to tire or that others have thoughts to express. Such are Cleveland and Blair and divers others. I pray thee have this evil stopped in the University."

"O, mighty spirit," spoke a third, "it is in the interest of Lucy Cobb and for the peace of Milledge Avenue that I invoke you. For there are some named Byrd and Cohen and Dancy and Daniel and Bloodworth and Weston, who on every night when honest folks are abed do stroll up and down Milledge Avenue in front of Lucy Cobb, and do utter strange noises, howlings, and hootings and various kinds of brayings. I pray thee stop this crying evil in the University."

"O, mighty spirit," spoke a fourth, "I invoke thee in the interest of law and order. There be some among us whose names we do not know, who know not the difference between healthy, good-natured fun and vandalism, pure and simple. Such ones paint class letters on the church and confiscate things of value from the Normal School Campus, and do divers other acts that cannot be excused or condoned. I pray thee let this evil be stopped in the University."

"O, mighty spirit," spoke a fifth, "there are certain ones in the University such as Goodrich and Hopkins and Blakshear and Golucke and Moore who do think themselves mighty speakers, mightier even than Demosthenes, so that in the literary societies they attempt to monopolize the floor, and they put all the members to sleep, and they injure beyond estimation the literary societies. I pray thee squelch these presuming ones."

When all had finished the spirit slowly arose and taking a ladle she dipped it into the caldron and apportioned to each the amount of the gruel necessary to accomplish his request, pronouncing at the same time certain magic words to make good the charm. With the parting injunction that the Sons of Retribution must wreak their vengeance fully and completely, she disappeared in the darkness that enshrouded her and was gone.
THE ENCAMPMENT

On April 11th the University of Georgia Cadets, 180 strong, and the engineering corps of 20 members, went into camp near Gainesville for the purpose of instruction in camp usage and extensive military practice. The camp had been laid out by the engineering corps under the direction of Professor Strahan and all was in readiness for the cadets when they arrived.

Every detail of regular military camp was observed. The following general order for the camp was adhered to throughout the week and will give the best idea of how the boys employed their time.

GENERAL ORDERS Nos. 1 AND 2 COMBINED.

- Reveille—First call 6:30 a.m. Assembly 6:30.
- Company Drill 6:25 a.m. Recall 7:25 a.m.
- First Sergeant's call 7:30 a.m.
- Breakfast—First call 7:50 a.m. Assembly 8 a.m.
- Battalion close order drill 8:45 a.m.
- Recall 9:45 a.m.
- Guard mount 10:15 a.m.
- Officers' school 12:30 p.m.
- Dinner 1 p.m.
- Non-commissioners' school 3 p.m.
- Battalion extended order drill 4 p.m.
- Recall 5 p.m.
- Battalion parade 5:30 p.m.
- Supper 6:30 p.m.
- Tattoo 10 p.m.
- Taps 11 p.m.

In addition to the above duties, the cadets had to take their turn on guard duty and one company was kept at rifle practice each day.

The engineering corps under Prof. Strahan made a topographical survey, four miles square including the Dunlap Shoals on the Chattahoochee, the new dam of the Georgia Electric Company, and some of the most beautiful and rugged scenery along the river. The corps put in about nine hours a day in the field, besides work on the notes at night. Prof. Strahan expressed himself as highly pleased with the week's work and says that the behavior of the boys was all that could be desired.

The commissary department was well managed by Capt. J. M. McCurdy, G. S. T., and the boys appreciated the menu.

A thorough military spirit pervaded the camp and every man in it did his best. There was no attempt to shirk duty. The guards walked their posts, whether by day or in the cold windy hours of the night like trained troops and when the camp broke up nothing was reported lost.

Governor Terrell inspected the camp Friday afternoon and said: "The camp is as well arranged and is as neatly kept as any camp I have inspected as governor of Georgia. I am delighted with the success of this encampment. They have nothing but praise from the people of Gainesville."

Superintendent of Schools J. W. Marion said: "The University boys came on Monday at 12:30 and before night had completely captured Gainesville by their genial manner and gentlemanly conduct. Nothing but praise has been heard about them and they deserve every word of it."

Rev. D. J. Blackwell said: "The University boys have captured Gainesville in general and Brenau college in particular. A manlier crowd I never saw wear the gray."

Mayor Howard Thompson said: "I could not be better pleased with the deportment and work of the University battalion. My officers say that they have seen nothing that deserved criticism."

Col. Perry said that he was much impressed with the thorough military spirit and with the hard work done.

The reception at Brenau was an elegant affair and was enjoyed by both the Dahlonega and University cadets.

The boys say that the people of Gainesville did everything possible for their entertainment and comfort. The street car company was exceedingly accommodating, having cars at their service at any time and charging nothing for rides from camp down to the park and rifle range. Mayor Thompson had the drill field scraped and rolled by the city hands and the camp cleaned of all stumps and underbrush.

The Dahlonega Cadets, 96 strong, came down Wednesday afternoon to Gainesville and joined the University battalion in regimental drill. They were a manly set of young men, well drilled and well behaved.

The two battalions fought together in sham battle against the Georgia militia troops, over 3,000 visitors being present.

Major Griggs and Captain Sanford have won the thanks of the University for the successful management of the first encampment.

An encampment is as essential to marked interest in the military department as intercollegiate games is to interest in baseball, football or track athletics. A captaincy of a company should be sought for as eagerly as that of the football eleven. At the encampment rivalry is increased among the companies in the many military exercises before visitors and state officials.

In its military department the university has an excellent opportunity for the physical development of the students. Military exercises are regular and not spasmodic, reach all the students and not those alone who are fond of athletics, are kept within bounds and tend to develop all the muscles systematically. Under proper training the cadet's body straightens, his head is held erect, his step is firm and graceful, his shoulders are thrown back, his chest expands and a manlier bearing takes the place of the slovenly gait, rounded shoulders and uncertain look.

The increased physical vigor resulting from military drill acts directly upon the central nervous system, and the intellect is quickened. The mind is clearer and better prepared for the studies of the night after the invigorating drills of the afternoon. Voluntary attention becomes habitual. The soldier must attend. Mind-wandering is fatal. From concentration on the drill to voluntary concentration of attention upon the preparation of his studies is an easy step.

Obedience and self-control become second nature to a well-trained cadet. Respect for authority is inculcated and the student becomes a law-abiding, law-sustaining citizen. The effect upon the character here is most marked, for a good character is a completely fashioned will. Thus the habits of attention to details, of exactness and thoroughness, of executing commands and of commanding follows a young man from the school room to the counting house, office or factory. The increased interest in the State militia due to the passage by Congress of the Dick Bill is another reason for stressing the military department. Young men trained in college will naturally be leaders in the local companies and can be of service to the State and nation. They will be eligible to positions at West Point and Annapolis and to appointments in the regular army.

The University, in bringing the military feature of the institution into prominence, is doing a great service to the State by using it as a means of physical training and of establishing good habits.—J. S. STEWART, of State University.

L'ENVOY

I

“What has been writ is writ,” for good or evil;
It stands or falls through the eternal years;
Pronounce it good—at least try to be civil,
Soothe and allay our worse than mortal fears.

II

The time is closed, the story sung forever—
A mingled memory of smiles and tears—
Light as the foam that flicks the rushing river,
It floats along down through the vale of years.
