On Sept. 21 at 10 a.m., a public building dedication ceremony will be held in the main critique space of the building. UGA President Michael F. Adams, CED Dean Dan Nadenicek, and fifth-year BLA Sydney Thompson, will speak about what this newly rehabilitated building means for the University and the College. A ribbon cutting in front of the main entrance and a short reception will follow.

The remainder of the day on Sept. 21 will serve as an open house for alumni, the university community, and the public. The Altamaha: A River and Its Keeper exhibit in Circle Gallery will be open, plus student work and storyboard posters relating the history of CED on campus will be on display around the building. From 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. there will be a College informational fair in the critique space of the Jackson Street building. Students and the public will be able to learn more about the academic programs, study abroad opportunities, and student organizations the College offers.

The building, including the Circle Gallery, will be open to the public from 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Visitor parking is available in the North Campus Parking Deck on South Jackson Street.
