Congratulations to Professor and Coordinator of the Master of Historic Preservation (MHP), James Reap (JD ’76), for receiving one of two “Excellence in Preservation Service” awards from the The Georgia Trust for Historic Preservation!

Awards in the Excellence in Preservation Service category recognize persons, groups, businesses or government entities demonstrating exemplary activities and promoting awareness in the field of historic preservation. The scope of work may be of local, regional or statewide significance. This year the trust presented two Excellence in Preservation Service
